FOREWORD - - - -

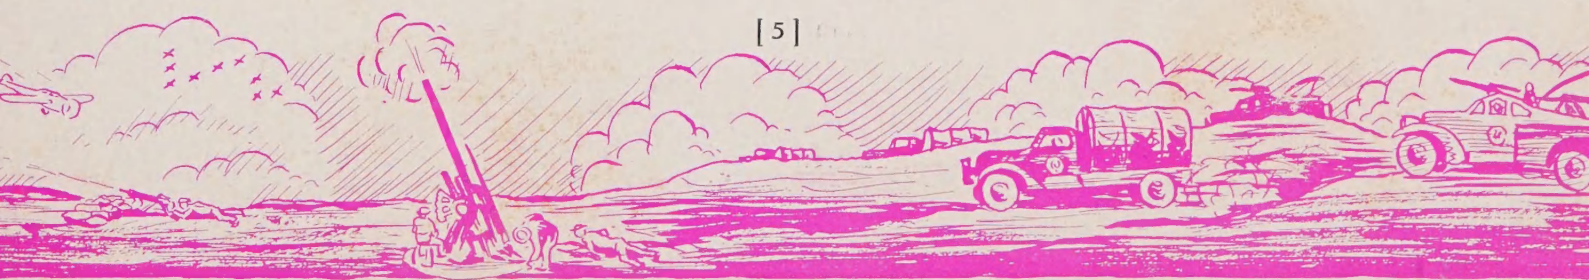

EACH of us is fighting a battle and each has a common goal—success. Already we have encountered many enemies but in every encounter our fight has been valiant. In a measure, we are now a tested division about to face the greater battles of life. Before this new fight we have a brief furlough during which period we are endeavoring to describe the ground we have gained. Our medium is this 1942 edition of HI-WAYS.

DEDICATION

By her tireless effort, capable guidance and loving interest, Miss Pauline Pinkston has helped us to advance to new positions. It is to her that we dedicate this, our 1942 edition of HI-WAYS.

CLASS SONG

(Tune: "Tonight We Love")

Today we say our goodbye
To dear old Wadesboro High,
And though we go far away,
Our hearts forever here will stay,
And though our days now are gone,
We'll take the road for our own.
We'll take our mem'ries with us, and you'll miss us;
will we be gone
Or will we always live on in Wadesboro High?

Today we leave with regrets
Our teachers, classmates, and friends;
They touch our heart, love is ours.
When day begins, and all its hours,
And when our school days are o'er
And we're together no more,
We'll cherish days forever spent together
though we be gone,
And we will always live on in Wadesboro High!

Margaret Helen Gaddy,
Bebe Stokes.

CLASS POEM

Sonnet on Parting

Although the time has come to say goodbye
To friends and classmates of these past twelve years,
Who shared our joys; who kept our spirits high
When things went wrong, that rarely plagued by fears
Our days made glad within these hallowed walls
As seasons passed and mind and body grew;
The grace and wisdom shrined within these halls
Leaves but regret for school and praises due.
But we go not with tears or heavy heart
For life is rich and we must look ahead
To days close by when we shall be a part
Of life in this fair land where heroes tread;
Nor do we go with laughter in our eyes
For always there is sadness in goodbyes.

Edmund Little,
Class Poet.

CLASS HISTORY

Class Historian
Mary Elizabeth Davis

At last it is over—the battle won! It has been a long hard fight, but we have stuck it out to the finish.

It all began when, twelve years ago, this group of “selectees,” after being duly examined and vaccinated, joined forces with the great W. S. Army in the battle of Knowledge. As “buck privates” we were a little “green” the first year or two, but we soon became accustomed to the various drills, and mastered the “manual of arms,” which included the proper method for holding and using pencils. The first three years were spent at “Camp Primer,” our commanding officers being Captains Liles, Plunkett, Webb, Leak, Gulledge, Baughan, Gray, and Cameron.

After these three years we were transferred to the opposite side of the “company street” and took our places in the slightly more advanced classes. As our first instructor in the new location, we shared Lt. Mary Allen with fifth year cadets. Lt. Nannie Gulledge was in command of one detachment during this year. In the fifth year we were under Lts. Pinkston and Allen.

Then came a special period of “Intermediary training,” during which two years we received intensive instruction preparatory for graduation from training school. Our studies were broadened; our group of instructors more than doubled, this time to include Captains Boggan, Bennett, Cunningham, and Gulledge.

This year was to have completed our period of basic training, but in that same year it was decided that another year of “toughening” be added to our schooling. Majors Johnson and Reinhardt were our supervisory officers.

Finally we were ready for actual combat—four long years of it. Led by Lt. Col. Thelma Daniels and Col. Perk Reinhardt, for nine months we battled valiantly with Gen. English and Gen. Science of the opposing forces. After a year Col. Kathleen Morris took command against Gen. English for another period of nine months.

Bewildered by the sudden attack of Brig. Gen. Algebra of Mathland, one of our most dreaded foes, even under the brilliant leadership of Gen. Elizabeth Johnson, some of our number fell under the Mathlanders’ unerring accuracy of fire.

Some fell mortally wounded or were lost “at sea” during the terrific struggle with Commodores Latin and French, experienced leaders of the “Allgreetkome” forces. During the second year of this struggle we mourned the loss of Gen.

Frances Stansell, but the victory over Com. Latin's army was attained under Gen. Alice Stough, who very ably assumed command. Com. French was defeated by a rather small group of soldiers under Gen. Olive Kirby during the fourth year of the conquest.

In 1940 and '41 a group of us were sent out, Gen. Johnson again in command, to do battle with Gen. "G. O. Metry's" "Axiom" party, also of Mathland's mighty forces. When that attack failed to down us, another expedition was sent out against our numbers. Late in 1941 Gen. W. L. Wildermuth took Gen. Johnson's command and led us victoriously through the battle. Even Mathland's deadly secret weapon, the "Trigger-no-metry," could not overpower us.

With Gen. W. R. Howell at our head we made a successful attack on the ancient kingdom of history. Under the able leadership of Maj. Marguerite Woodson Morris and Maj. Elizabeth Fink, a squadron of privates succeeded in conquering "Generalissimo Ty-ping" and his regiment of "Royals."

Gen. English was not entirely overcome until the middle of 1942, but the final victory was due mainly to the heroic efforts and inspiring leadership of our four-star Gen. Eva Holder.

For the last four years V. W. Lewis has been our beloved and respected Commander-in-chief, with the able assistance of G. B. Snuggs as Chief-of-staff.

From time to time some of the drabness of camp life was relieved by various social diversions. These included two plays—"Laughing Gas," directed by Lt. Worthy Spence; and "Claim Allowed," with Lt. Col. Kathleen Morris directing. The annual dances were events of great importance, along with special dances given on various occasions.

During the course of the war the following commanders won great recognition for their services in various fields; Gen. Wildermuth, in charge of chemical warfare; Gens. Hinson and Allen, heads of the "Intelligence Department"; Hicks and Cooley, in charge of defense production; Davis and Treadwell, of the Quartermaster Corps.

The "W. S. Army Band," organized by Lt. Gen. R. W. Cartier, and later led by Gen. David P. Bennett, lent much moral support to its fellow soldiers, winning for itself fame and glory, and even receiving national citation through its sensational achievements.

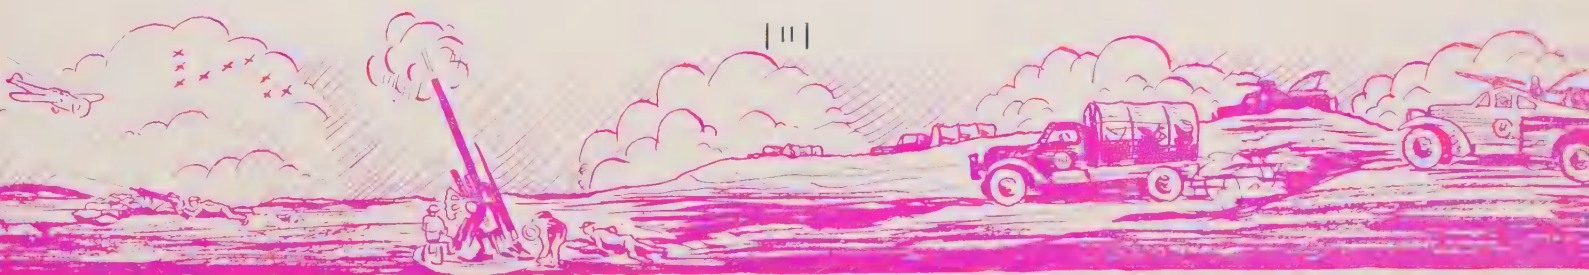

The final terms of the "Treaty of Peace" were made and the agreements signed and sealed on June 2, 1942. At a public ceremony special awards and recognition for "distinguished service" were presented, and "honorable discharges" granted to the forty-odd survivors of the struggle.

We are, for the most part, the same group that started out together in the fall of 1930. Some have fallen out; others transferred from other divisions, but we have been together these twelve years—brought together by a common cause, thrilled now by a common reward. Twelve years of happy companionship have been ours.

And now it is over. Our foes we have conquered; our ambitions realized; our goal attained. Our objective we have ever held in mind—to capture the vast stronghold of Knowledge and make full use of the experience gained in this conquest.

We can see now that this has not been a "war to end all wars," but that it is only a preparatory "maneuver" for the greater battles of Life.

Mary Elizabeth Davis,
Class Historian.

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

To All Whom This May Concern:

The class of '42 of Wadesboro High School, after four years or more under close supervision in the aforesaid institution, is about to be discharged as being of sound mind and body, and herewith makes and executes its last will and testament in the following manner:

To Mr. Lewis, our kindhearted and thoughtful superintendent, we leave our gratitude for his special efforts to lend support in all your undertakings.

To Mr. Snuggs, our beloved and genial principal, we leave our whole-hearted appreciation for all that he has done for us, not only as a class, but as individuals.

To our parents and those who have made our training here possible, we leave our undying love and gratitude.

To Miss Holder, our faithful and efficient teacher, we leave our heartfelt gratitude for all the jams she has brought us through, and for the problems that she has shouldered. All that we can say is thanks.

To the junior class, we leave the honor of following in our footsteps; also the privilege to use the front steps at recess and to occupy the front seats in chapel.

To the sophomore class, we leave the unquestionable right to fight among themselves over the confronting problems of the next junior-senior banquet.

To the freshman class, we leave our expectations of a great senior class of '45.

The following seniors have bequeathed the following traits:

I, Billie Rivers, do bequeath Hugh for Annabelle, Edith, and Sheffield to fight over.

Class Testator
Frances Eller

I, Margaret Helen Gaddy, do bequeath to "Nappy" Winfree my ability to dance.

I, Bebe Stokes, do bequeath to James Hart my music ability.

I, Marion Griffin, do bequeath Tuck to the girls of the junior class.

I, Mary Lily Beachum, do bequeath my car to the boys that bum rides after school.

I, Elizabeth Thomas, do bequeath to Pauline Atkinson my job to work in the cafeteria.

I, Jennings Seago, do bequeath my blushing ability to the girls of the freshman class.

I, Mary Elizabeth Davis, do bequeath my executive ability to next year's president of Student Council.

I, Mabel Cornelius, do bequeath my quiet manners to Betty Latham.

I, Ed Little, do bequeath my poetic ability to Edgar Gathings.

I, Martha Crawford, do bequeath my athletic ability to Lula Welsh Davidson.

I, Joseph Fellers, do bequeath to Jay Mills my job in the office.

I, Dorothy Hildreth, do bequeath my friendly smiles to Caroline Hill.

I, Vera Ferguson, do bequeath my abil-due largely to the efforts of Vera Ferguson, private secretary.

My eyes traveled through the wires to another part of New York. Here I looked in on Correne McQuague, famous interior decorator. She had found that the modern living room could be done in nothing prettier than purple and gold.

Dear Diary, I didn't realize that the class of '42 would be so interesting to follow until I got behind the television switch-board. Here I see everybody. Only last month I remember tracing a call to Hollywood. Who did I see staring me in the face but Playboy Edmund Little, who had just reached town. The soft-spoken handsome Mr. Little had returned from an inspection tour on some of his million-dollar plants down in South America.

Television took me to an opera house in New York once. Here I saw "Dot" Hildreth, who was rehearsing for her hit show of the year. She was with the Pleasant Music Club. In listening in on the wire I found that Margaret Helen Gaddy and Mary Elizabeth Davis were also connected with the club—Margaret Helen with her own little band, and Mary Elizabeth as director of the singing.

One day I found myself gazing into the heart of a business district in the office of the industrial magnate, Joseph Fellers. Joseph was in conference with his stenographer, Emma Trexler. Close scrutiny revealed that the success of this firm was

Dear Diary, I am now working in the I. C. U. Office in Teleme, Missouri. Yesterday I sent a call to Miss Jennings Seago, founder of the Study-Hard Institute. Wyolene Teal and Nancy Ingram were also working at this institute performing the task of teaching the younger generation.

On days when I'm off duty I go sight-seeing here in Teleme. In going around I found the hospital a very interesting place. I met Julia Lowe, head of the Nurses' Home. In chatting with Julia, I learned that Evelyn Yow, air-line hostess, had received a brain injury in an airplane crash the week before. Evelyn had a brain operation, which was described as "most unusual" performed by the brilliant surgeon, Doctor Ann Lockhart.

Today I saw a very thrilling college football game. After the game I went over to congratulate the winning team. Who do you suppose was the beloved coach? "Heavy" Wright!

Guidance . . .

Men of old were guided in making important decisions by prophets and seers. As man grew in intelligence, such mystical and chance advice became outmoded. It is this renaissance which gave rise to today's counselling attorney.

The legal profession of Wadesboro has been thoroughly trained both scholastically speaking and in the school of experience.

In offering this wealth of counsel to you, the class of 1942, we should like to express our sincere wish that your futures will be useful and prosperous.

Class Prophecy

Francisco to have an exclusive dress designed by the famous dress designer, Billie Rivers. In talking to Miss Rivers she found it necessary to visit the shop to make the proper arrangements. By coincidence I sent another call to "Mot's" Shop today. I saw Miss Stokes wearing the model and having the newest hair style, arranged by Juanita Moore, attractive beauty operator.

In having to put through a call to the Royal Air Force receiving station in Ottawa, Canada, I was lucky enough to catch K. C. Stafford, famous air-line pilot, just preparing for a trans-Atlantic trip to England to aid the Allies with a new device in aviation upon which they were transacting all their strength and endeavor.

April 27

Dear Diary, vacation is almost over. I have thoroughly enjoyed my visit back in the old town. In traveling around I find many old friends. Julia Ross Brower, in the school, is teaching the youngsters in the primary grades. She is earnestly striving to make the school interesting and worth while.

Not far from town I found a thriving Metropolis. It was a large experimental farm where Thomas Baker and H. B. Griggs were startling the agricultural world with their amazing discoveries.

In the business section of town, I found that Fred Moore had a very good investment in the Sleepwell Hotel. Juanita Pigg was employed as a most efficient dietitian. Elizabeth Thomas was bookkeeper.

Sight-seeing over the town, I found that a new club had been organized. It is the Escort Club, with Mary Lily Beachum and Marion Griffin at the head. Mary Lily informed me that it had proved very beneficial to new comers in the town. Becky Winfree, Frances Leavitt, and Frances Eller are on the committee and seem to carry out their jobs very well.

Upon the last morning of my visit, I glanced over the morning paper. A name which had a great significance caught my eye. None other than our own little Billy Eddins was fighting that night for the world's heavy-weight championship. He was described as having a 2 to 1 chance of winning.

May 15

Dear Diary, I am on my way back to Teleme. I feel that my first visit was worth while and that I can begin work again with spirit anew. I pray that God will rest his richest blessings upon the class of '42.

ity to run things smoothly to Helen Coit Redfearn.

I, Julia Lowe, do bequeath my ability

I, Wyolene Teal, do bequeath my height to talk to Annabel Allen.
to John Kiker.

I, Correne McQuague, do bequeath my co-operative ways to Emma Gathings.

I, Ann Lockhart, do bequeath my winning personality to Doris Mitchell.

I, Becky Winfree, do bequeath my neat appearance to Kathleen Thompson.

I, K. C. Stafford, do bequeath my wit to Ernest Gulledge.

I, Thomas Baker, do bequeath my garb to W. B. Winfree.

I, Frances Eller, having no special talent, do leave my love and best wishes for Wadesboro High School.
